COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

THURSDAY EVENING, 27TH JAN. 1876.

With a continuance of comparatively heavy receipts at the American ports, the Liverpool Cotton Market continues very depressed in tone, and private messages generally take a very gloomy view of the prospects of Surats, both in the immediate and more distant future.

Reuter's closing telegram of yesterday reported the tone of the market as quiet but steady, Surats dull, sales 14,000 bales, spot prices unchanged. To arrive, Fair Omrawuttee with the fair clause, January-February and February-March shipment via Cape is quoted at 4¾d. per lb. This morning's opening report is steady, probable sales 12,000, actual imports 12,000 bales.

From New York yesterday evening's message quotes Mid-Uplands on the spot at 13¼ cents, an advance of ¼; March shipment 13¾ cents, an advance of 1/16 cent per lb. Gold and Exchange on London are unaltered. The receipts of Cotton at the ports to date are as follows :—

	1876	1875	1874
Wednesday's Receipts	21,000	20,000	26,000
Five days' ,, ...	87,000	76,000	114,000
Total since 1st Sept.	2,884,000	2,475,000	2,502,000

The Manchester Piece Goods Market is still reported unchanged.

The London Coffee Market is dull, but quotations are unaltered. Cocoanut Oil and Seeds are quoted at previous prices.

Reuter reports that at the East India Wool sales in London, 10,000 bales were offered and prices were 5 per cent. lower than last sales. The decline in this article of late has been almost equal to the fall in Cotton and losses to shippers from this side have been considerable.

Consols this morning are quoted at 94¼; French Rentes at 105½. Sterling Exchange here to-day has undergone a further collapse and our quotations show a decline since yesterday of fully a half per cent. Some of the Banks in the morning named 1s. 9d. as their drawing rate for demand, but in a very short time this gave place to 1s. 9-15/16d. and later on to 1s. 8½d, but even at this level there is a strong indisposition to draw and an active demand for private bills of which the amount offering is extremely limited. For 3 months' sight Credits 1s. 9¼d. is the quotation at the close and 1s. 9-5/16d. for Documents, but in the present state of affairs, merchants seem disposed to follow the same policy as the Banks and decline to sell except what they are actually obliged. The position as it now exists has no parallel in previous experience here. Not only are the rates the lowest on record, but there seems to be an actual dread of doing business either way, and a continuance of the unsettled feeling will have a most injurious effect on the general trade of the port. If anything like a reliable opinion could be formed as to the probable course of events, the position would be less disturbing, as, if we are to have a further fall, no matter how serious it could be allowed for in calculations, but for the time being no one seems capable of affording a reason for the collapse let alone gauging the probable extent of it. Surmises of all kinds have been rife to-day, some people attributing everything to an expected drop in Silver and others to a report that the German Government are likely to resume shipments to this side again at an early date. In the meantime, however, Reuter continues to quote Bar Silver in London at 55-3/16d, and private telegrams state that there is no great quantity to be had at that, so that neither of these reasons appear to be reliable as yet. It seems pretty certain though that Silver must be the depressing cause some way or other, as, a corresponding state of affairs is reported from Calcutta, and all the usual influences connected with our market, if anything, point the other way.

In Exchange on Calcutta we have not heard of any actual business to-day and rates are nominally unaltered, say for demand 1-16 and 60 days' sight ⅛ per cent. discount.

Government Paper continues firm at previous values. Fours Rs. 101½ to Rs. 102; Fours-and-a-half, Rs. 101⅛ to ¼; Fives and-a-half, Rs. 106 to ½.

The Share Market is steady, but, if anything, less active. Business has been done in Bank of Bombays at Rs. 706½d. G. I. P. Railway £20 block has advanced to Rs. 265xd. Colaba Land and Port Cannings have advanced Rs. 5 per share respectively. Press Companies are unaltered. Spinning and Weaving shares continue very firm and a further rise of Rs. 5 to Rs. 10 must generally be quoted.

In Cotton we have had a very quiet market to-day and prices are not materially altered except for Ginned Broach which is again quoted Rs. 1 per candy lower. Purchases of Akote have been made to-day at Rs. 183 to Rs. 186, and of Good Fair Omra at Rs. 168 to Rs. 170 per candy full-pressed. Up-country things are reported somewhat easier, owing to more liberal arrivals. The receipts here yesterday were 5,678 bales, making 16,948 bales for the six days.

Freights are steady at £2-7-6 by Canal Steamers for Liverpool, but shippers show no anxiety to engage forward at the rate. A number of Pilgrim Steamers will be set at liberty in the course of the next three weeks or so and these are generally expected to have a depressing effect on rates. By sail we still quote £2 3-9 to £2-5 for Liverpool.

Piece Goods continue very dull and some few sales have been made to-day at a reduction of a half to one anna per piece. The losses to importers, owing to the heavy fall in exchange, are becoming most serious, and it would almost appear as if the trade must come to a standstill if prices do not recover here ere long.

SPECIAL TELEGRAMS FOR THE BOMBAY GAZETTE.

THE NEW POLITICAL AGENT FOR KHELAT.

KURRACHEE, 27TH JAN.

Colonel Munro was expected at Jacobabad yesterday to relieve Colonel Loch of Political charge of the Khelat Agency.

 The Khelat Agency has really been in abeyance since Major Harrison left the Khan's Court and was forbidden by the Government of India to go back again. Colonel Loch's appointment is that of Political Superintendent of the Upper Scinde frontier. We presume, however, that he has latterly conducted well such relations as were maintained with Khelat; and now a Punjab officer is deputed to make these his special charge. The appointment may indicate the adoption of a more decided policy towards Khelat; but we should doubt it.—ED. B. G.

THE PURCHASE OF THE CANAL SHARES.

LONDON, 26TH JAN.

It is considered probable that when the discussion regarding the Khedive's Canal shares comes on in Parliament, a strong opposition to the purchase will be shown by the Liberal party. INDO-EUROPEAN TELEGRAPH.

27TH JANUARY.

Maximum time occupied by messages received in transit from United Kingdom to Bombay, 10 hours 29 minutes.

Minimum time occupied 0 hour 37 minutes.

Average time occupied 5 hours 10 minutes.

SIR LOUIS MALLET'S medical advisers insist, the Pioneer states, upon his returning home at once. He will to-leave Calcutta last night for Bombay; and he will take his departure for England by the steamer of Monday week (February, the 10th).

THE Pioneer hears that a telegram was received from the Marquis of Salisbury on Tuesday last, intimating that Lord Lytton purposes reaching Calcutta on the 2nd of April, it is supposed, via Bombay. Lord Northbrook will return home by the same route.

CAPTAIN E. W. SHAW, Royal Navy, Lieutenant Governor of Malacca, was expected to arrive in Madras, in the Steamer Duke of Devonshire on Wednesday last. On his arrival a salute of 15 guns would be fired from the Saluting Battery, and a guard of honour consisting of 50 Rank and File with Regimental Color and Band from the 13th Regiment N. I. would parade on the Pier to receive his Honour.

THE Calcutta papers state that a decision has been given by the High Court, under which the Court of Wards has lost a large portion of the Sunkara estate in the Sonthal Parganas. The estate, we are informed, is heavily indebted to a Mr. Grant, who has got a lien on it for Rs. 25,000 money lent, besides Rs. 12,000 advanced to defray expenses of law suits, &c. The Court of Wards intends appealing to the Privy Council against the decree of the High Court.

LIEUTENANT VON THIELMANN, in his account of a journey in Caucasus, Persia, and Turkey in Asia, states that at Baku on the Caspian Sea, he found a singular relic of the past—a Guebre priest, deputed by the Parsees of India to keep alive the sacred fire which has burned there for ages. This official is now the sole professor of the fire-worshipping religion which was once paramount in these regions. It is a curious instance of the change that modern progress is working all over the world, that the source of this once mysterious and still venerated flame is now worked as a petroleum distillery.

COMPARATIVELY few residents in Madras, we imagine, remarks the Madras Times, know the full extent of the attractions that the Government Central Museum offer to the public, "free, gratis and for nothing." There are fine collections of natural history, antiquities, coins, products of the country, and curiosities of sorts. To its other attractions has now been added the skeleton of a magnificent whale, most artistically put together. Only in one other museum in the world, we believe, is as perfect a specimen to be seen, while there are only about three complete skeletons in existence. The Madras specimen has jaws that could easily account for Jonah, while the ribs enclose a space at least as big as a P. and O. cabin for three.

BY the Darjeeling News we are told that Sir Richard Temple has finally decided against the claims of Buxa to be the site of a European colony, and two other places are now under consideration. One of these is within easy distance, about twenty miles, of what will some day be the terminus of the Northern Bengal State Railway, which is to run just up to the foot of the hills. The water-supply, however, is not quite so plentiful as it might be; so this first site stands a good chance of being rejected. The other, a far more likely one, is in British Bhootan, north east of Darjeeling. A fair number of applications from would-be colonists, families of some worth, have already been received; and a nucleus thus formed promises well for the future prosperity of the colony.

WE have received a copy of "Ganta's Madras People's Almanac and General Directory" for this year, and we notice that the book contains the quantity of information usually supplied, which is very useful to residents in Madras and throughout that Presidency. "The Gardener's Calendar" leads to the supposition that gardening is one of the occupations of Madras people, and as instructions in the art are also given for Bangalore and hill stations, there is apparently more attention paid to gardening throughout the Madras Presidency than probably in other parts of India. Bombay people might follow this good example. The printing and general appearance of the book are very good, and show [illegible] in the art of book-binding and [illegible] the city of Madras. A very good [illegible]dras accompanies the volume. The [illegible]dents in Madras looks very meagre [illegible]e enlarged with advantage.

[illegible]LFORD MOLESWORTH, Consulting Engi[illegible]ie Railways who lately left Madras for [illegible]s been paying a visit to the Neilgher[illegible]r to examine the country for a Rail[illegible] the Hills. He has had lengthened [illegible] with the Commissioner and District Engineer on the subject, and went over a portion of the route with the latter officer. He is entirely in favor of the Rigi system. The Madras Mail adds to the above information the following remarks:—We trust his visit augers good things in store for the Neilgherries, and that the much desired Neilgherry Railway will, before many more years, be a fact. We hear that Mr. Juland Danvers, the Secretary of the India Office for Public Works, and Mr. Rendel, the Consulting Engineer for the East India Railway, who visited Ootacamund some time ago, have similarly favourable views of the project.

THE Pioneer:—A romantic story reaches us from one of the wild frontier districts on the Upper Indus. A fine young Pathan of generally good character had reason to suspect the fidelity of his betrothed. He met her at the village well, a few hundred yards from the village, and made the old mistake which aggrieved lovers have committed, at least since the beginning of authentic records on the subject. He taxed the fair culprit with her fickleness, and laid bare the wounds in his heart. It need not be added that the young heroine declared she would love whom she liked. That will be understood, but unfortunately, it must be added in this case that the young Pathan lifted up his axe—he had been going to cut wood—and a moment afterwards fled to the hills, no longer a respectably engaged young villager, but a murderer and an exile. So far the story is common place enough; but it is complicated a little shortly afterwards, for two men go off in pursuit of the fugitive, overtake him, and assure him that the girl is not dead as he supposed. The murderer is thus beguiled back, and induced to give up his axe. On his return journey the whole party meet a Government sowar, a cunning person, who afterwards claims the reward for capturing the prisoner, and, strange to say, gets a large part of it eventually, though, as he appears to have lied freely in court, and not to have had any real merit in the capture, the result is surprising rather. Of course the Pathan will be hanged (as he will not be tried by a French Jury), and the public will no doubt approve. Jilted lovers must be made to understand that in difficulties of this kind they should kill the man, not the woman.

THE annual meeting in connection with the Brahmo Somaj was held at the Town Hall, Calcutta, last Saturday, at 4-30 P. M. Amongst those present were His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, the Bishop of Calcutta, the Rev. Dr. Thoburn, the Rev. J. T. Ross, and several other gentlemen, as well as a few ladies, and a large concourse of natives, Brahmos and others. The proceedings were opened with a Bengali prayer, which was intoned by the leading Brahmos present, after which a hymn was sung, Baboo Keshub Chunder Sen then delivered an address, of which the following is a portion, which we cut from the Indian Daily News. He said he verily believed that when Christ was about to leave this world he made over the government of His Church to the Holy Spirit, and Baboo Keshub Chunder Sen thought that every believer must see in this arrangement wisdom, sagacity, foresight and loving kindness. It was necessary that the Prophet of Nazareth should have made such provision for His Church, for the disciples would otherwise have been left in gloom and darkness, in doubt and uncertainty. Even at the present time, the heart is perturbed when it looks back upon the gloomy scene, and it was absolutely necessary for the moral and spiritual interests of mankind that Christ should have proclaimed the great fact of the succession of the Holy Spirit, who was to be their Comforter, their Light, their Strength and their Salvation, and to guide them into all truth. Was the work done when Christ said "It is finished,"—the great and glorious work of human redemption? No. The disciples had strength and comfort sent to them to invigorate them, and to enable them to conquer and go on conquering, imbued with the Spirit of Truth. Christianity as the institution was greatly indebted to that liberal hearted gentleman, Mr. Cowasjee Dinshaw, for establishing a library on its premises at a cost of Rs. 7,000 for the benefit, among others, of the students of the school, and concluded his speech by congratulating the Head Master and his able assistant on the result of the operation of the school for the past year, and hoped they would be equally successful in the future, as they have been in the past in maintaining, if not enhancing, the brilliant reputation of the school.

BAILIFFS—DUNN vs. CONSTABLE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—The correspondence which some one has set going in your columns about bailiffs ought to do some good. I do not think that anything overdrawn or untrue has been stated. A great public scandal is involved in the question. There is a deal of iniquity done by bailiffs.

Some time ago a military man found it difficult to get home, so he tried to work his plans quietly. He got on board the steamer and thought "all was sure to go right," but a creditor had smelt a rat, and had got a writ out. The bailiff touched the soldier on the arm and informed him of his errand. "Look here," said the soldier, "what is my arrest worth to you?" "Twenty rupees," answered the bailiff. "Very well," answered the other, "then I will show you that my non-arrest is worth more. I will give you fifty not to see me." The fifty changed hands, and in spite of all he could do, the bailiff never caught sight of his man again, although their elbows rubbed as they occasionally passed. The getting away of the soldier is of course a good joke, but it is not a joke for the creditor, who, besides advancing money or goods, has gone to the expense of a writ and something to the bailiff, and flattered himself that his game was as good as bagged.

But I will tell you of a better joke;—better in itself and better because it is personal. Mr. Dunn, who lived in the Observatory compound, Upper Colaba, sued Mr. Constable, got a decree, and issued a writ. Mr. Constable had the bailiff in hand by virtue of certain good things which he used to send him when there was anything in the wind, as there generally was. Bailiff could not find Constable, so Dunn took bailiff in a buggy to try what they could do together. In the Fort they caught sight of Constable, but Constable was quite as sharp in catching sight of them, and before they could alight "in the name of the Queen," Constable was in a buggy, too, and showed them the number on his back panel. He dodged about the streets in the Fort, sometimes shutting himself out from sight of the pursuers, and sometimes being got in view at again. At length Constable succeeded in doubling a certain corner before the pursuers had rounded the preceding one. They were "at fault." No view, no scent. As constable lived at Upper Colaba as well as Dunn, the latter resolved to make the running in that direction. Away they went in full cry, and as they emerged from the Fort, saw Constable's number tearing over the Colaba causeway like mad.

"Away went Gilpin and away
Went post boy at his heels."

Constable hammered his buggywalla, the buggywalla his horse. The like retaliatory process went on in the buggy behind. The chase by this time had become raging hot. The excitement would have waned if constable had increased his lead, but the others were "cutting off his L. by inches," and the position was becoming critical, when lo! and behold! Constable's buggy broke down and out went Constable. He was not hurt, and being pretty fast at two or three hundred yards, went in to make the running in earnest. He improved on his own buggy and on the pursuing buggy too. The Bombay Times Office was at the beginning of Small Colaba, and Constable entered it unseen. He went up to Dr. Baist's Office, and while saying good morning to him, looked through the venetians and saw the pursuers tearing past the Upper Colaba Dispensary. Constable got into the yard very quickly in the same direction. Dunn finding himself worsted, drove home and left the bailiff to do his best by himself. Presently the bailiff and Constable met, waved smiles and went their ways.

Constable finally bolted from Bombay with a large amount of property belonging to Ritchie, Steuart and Co.

With characteristic daring he reappeared in Bombay as Major A. G. Constable in charge of the mad Parsee from New York. John Connon met him at a friends' house at dinner, and on one occasion found himself in the carriage with his host and hostess of that occasion, the Major making the fourth, doing an evening drive to the bunder. Connon thought Constable showed himself rather ill at ease, and whether or not, in acknowledgment of Connon's reticence he sent him on leaving Bombay soon after fifty rupees for the Police Court poor-box.

G. I. P. RAILWAY VOLUNTEERS.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

SHAHABAD, 26TH JAN.

THE members of the above corps at Shahabad are getting on remarkably well with their drill. Under their experienced and indefatigable instructor, Sergeant Padwick, the members show every willingness to receive instruction, and by their attention and ready obedience will, I have no doubt, soon prove themselves a very smart and active detachment. The daily attendance has been very good, and the men seem to take great interest in the movement; and I think the G. I. P. Railway Volunteer Corps will prove a decided success. A slight difficulty is experienced with the men at Raichore and Secunderabad, as it is impossible to get them all together at Shahabad. I would therefore suggest that our worthy instructor pay occasional visits to those stations, for the purpose of giving the members an opportunity of keeping pace with their brethren at Shahabad. Every assistance has been rendered by the heads of departments at this station to render the attendance of members as regular as is consistent with their daily duties. I wish the corps every success, and feel assured that should the time ever arrive for hard knocks, the G. I. P. Railway Volunteers will be found ready and willing to take their share.

They were standing on a scaffolding hanging by the outside of the vessel, when the ropes gave way and twelve men were precipitated into the bottom of the Dock from a height of some twelve or fifteen feet. One man had his collar bone broken, seven were more or less severely injured, while four others escaped almost without any injury worth mentioning. The eight men who were injured were attended to by the Apothecary in charge of the dispensary attached to the Dockyard; and one or two of them were afterwards sent to hospital.

THE SYRO-CHALDEAN PRIESTS.—With reference to the paragraph in our yesterday's issue about the Syro-Chaldean priests now in Bombay, a correspondent writes as follows:—"The Syro-Chaldean Church of Malabar has for ages, as is well known, resisted the aggressive onslaught of the Church of Rome, and has persistently refused to obey that assumed authority even though the Holy Office under Menezes, aided by all the power of Portugal in her palmiest days, pressed the Church heavily with tortures that made the name of the 'Society of Jesus' infamous in that time. I cannot, therefore, but believe this paragraph has emanated from some unauthorized body, and is another instance of the unscrupulous character of the priesthood of the Church of Rome."

THE THEFT OF VALUABLE DIAMONDS.—This case was resumed yesterday at the Fort Police Court, before Mr. C. P. Cooper, in which a Brahmin, named Ramchundra Ununtrao, and a Banuia, named Baktawur Sitkaram, stand charged with theft of three diamonds, valued at Rs. 1,000, belonging to Sir Charles Forbes and Co. Mr. Rimington (of Messrs. Rimington, Hore, and Langley), appeared for the prosecution. The prisoners were undefended. After the evidence of Mr. Macdonald, of the firm of Sir Charles Forbes & Co., which corroborated the statement made by Manockjee Muncherjee, the consignment clerk of that firm, in material points, had been taken, the prisoners were committed to take their trial at the next Criminal Sessions of the High Court.

Cooper, in which Esau Dada stands charged with attempting to murder Moosa Shereef on the night of the 9th instant. Mr. R. V. Hearn, the Public Prosecutor, conducted the case for the prosecution, and Mr. Balcrishna appeared for the defence. The evidence of Dr. J. P. Greany, a Surgeon in the Indian Medical Department, Bombay Establishment, and attached to the Goculdass Tejpal Hospital for temporary duty, was taken, which showed the nature of the wounds inflicted on the prosecutor (Moosa Shereef) when brought to that hospital for treatment. This closed the case for the prosecution. The prisoner was then formally committed to take his trial at the next Criminal Sessions of the High Court.

Cooper:—A noted character, named Abdool Raymon Koodabux, and Hurjeewun Jaiba, a goldsmith, were convicted, No. 1 of stealing two gold earrings from the person of Hapoo, girl, and No. 2 of receiving the ear rings, knowing them to be stolen. 5,000 RUPEES MISSING NOTES FOUND.—About a month ago, a city shroff, named Kristna Hutta, forwarded to Bombay by rail a parcel containing currency notes of Rs. 5,000, but the said parcel had gone astray—whether it was stolen during transit or not, we can't say—but a Maharnee woman, named Bhagoo Comlee Gunnoo, brought some of the currency notes into the city to cash, and was apprehended on suspicion of having currency notes in her possession of such a large sum. She was at once arrested by the city police, and at the same time her house was searched and gold and silver ornaments were found therein valued in all at Rs. 4,000. She is now in the custody of the police.—Id.

THE KUBARUCKWASLA WATER CASE.—The further hearing of this case which was adjourned till Tuesday last, has been postponed till Friday at 11 A. M. In consequence of an application for a postponement made by the Mooktiars, as Colonel Fitz, Chief Engineer for Irrigation, has sanctioned to engage the services of a Government Pleader through the Poona District Magistrate, his Worship granted the application. Mr. G. W. Allen, for the prosecution, renewed his application for making Mr. Livingston co-accused in the case under Section 104 of the Criminal Procedure Code, for aiding and abetting the offence, as Mr. Livingston is a person of authority, and had taken the responsibility upon himself of informing Captain Braine that the bucket was taken away by his order, and that he issued instructions that the bheestie should not be allowed to draw water. Under the circumstances, his Worship granted the application and ordered that a written petition should be put in, which was done at once.—Id.

HIGH COURT.—27TH JANUARY.

(BEFORE THE HON. SIR CHARLES SARGENT.)

ABBAJEE BABANJEE AND ANOTHER V. HAMABAEE, WIDOW.

MR. W. GILL, instructed by Messrs. Chalk and Turner, for the plaintiffs, applied for a stop order in respect of eight 4 per cent. Government promissory notes for Rs. 7,500 now in the hands of the Accountant General. The learned counsel said he moved on behalf of the assignors with the consent of the assignees, Patrick Ryan and another, who were the mortgagees of the fund in Court, in order to prevent the money being paid without notice to his clients. The defendant (Hamabaee) was decreed to receive during the term of her natural life Rs. 25 a month out of the estate of her late husband; and the plaintiffs were ordered to lodge with the Accountant General a sufficient sum in Government paper to produce Rs. 25 a month as interest. He now moved to prevent the issuing of the notes without notice to his clients.

His Lordship said—Virtually your application is for the assignee. I cannot make a stop order, but an order in the nature of a stop order.

The order was made accordingly.

A DISHONEST GOLDSMITH.

YESTERDAY, at the Girgaum Police Court, Mr. Richard Barton, a warder in the civil side of H. M.'s House of Correction, appeared before Mr. Dosabhoy Framjee and obtained a warrant for the arrest of a goldsmith, named Atmaram Babun, whom he charges with fraudulent misappropriation, in breach of trust, of three tolas of gold that were given to the accused for the purpose of making them up into two finger rings. It appears that the accused engaged to make him two gold rings at his premises at Parell on the 10th instant, for which purpose he gave him three tolas of gold valued at Rs. 50. The goldsmith worked up the gold into two rings on that day, but did not complete them by the evening, and consequently had to return on the following day to finish the work. As Mr. Barton had to go on duty at the jail that day, he left his servant, named Antone DeSouza, to look after the goldsmith whilst he was completing the work. In the evening of that day he delivered over two rings to the servant in a small box purporting to be the two rings that he had made up with the three tolas of gold. Mr. Barton returned home on the morning of the 12th instant, and the rings were handed to him by his servant, when he discovered that they were made of brass. Information was given to the police and a search instituted for the goldsmith, but he could not be found. He is supposed to be concealing himself or to have absconded from Bombay.

THE NEW CASE ARISING OUT OF THE AHMEDABAD CONSPIRACY CASE.

YESTERDAY, at the Fort Police Court, Mr. Nana Morojee committed the following defendants in this case to take their trial at the next Criminal Sessions of the High Court, viz:—Doongersey Narrayen, Haroon Latiff, Bow Mea Fazloodeen, Cooverjee Jaitha, Heerjee Hemraz, Ram Pursad, and Damodhur Venayek, who stood charged, at the instance of a Mahomedan, named Abdool Rahim Hajee Cadur, with fabricating false evidence in a judicial proceeding, with corruptly using as genuine the said evidence, knowing it to be false and fabricated, and with having caused criminal proceedings to be instituted against him, with intent to cause him injury, and with conspiracy and fabricating false evidence.

This is a case arising out of the Ahmedabad conspiracy case, whereby it is alleged that, upon the evidence of the above defendants in the original Ahmedabad conspiracy case several persons, of which the prosecutor is one, were convicted at the Criminal Sessions held at that time and imprisoned, but were subsequently released from imprisonment on finding that their evidence was false.

Mr. Serjeant Atkinson conducted the present case for the prosecution which has been pending in the Police Court since the latter part of October last before Mr. Nana Morojee, who, after a long and patient enquiry occupying several sittings, committed the defendants to the Criminal Sessions. Mr. Tobin (of Messrs. Lynch and Tobin) appeared for the defence of defendant No. 1; Mr. B. M. Wagle appeared on behalf of defendants Nos. 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7; and Mr. Branson, barrister-at-law, instructed by Mr. Nanoo Narayen Kotharee, appeared for defendant No. 5.

The three other parties, named Abdool Latiff Cummoo, Jaffer Cummoo, and one Currimkhan, against whom also warrants have been issued by the Magistrate at the instance of the same complainant, are still at large.

Of the present defendants only Bow Mea Fazloodeen, Heerjee Hemraz and Damodhur Venayek are allowed, to be liberated on satisfactory bail, the rest being remanded to jail.

THE INJUNCTION AGAINST THE MASTER OF THE S. S. MENZALEH.

AT the High Court, yesterday, Mr. Scoble (the Advocate-General) applied to Mr. Justice Green to make absolute the interim injunction, granted on Saturday last, to restrain Capt. Peter L. Rhode, master of the s. s. Menzaleh, now in Bombay harbour, from delivering to any other person than Robert L. Shackell, Superintendent of the Sassoon's dock, or his agents, certain goods on board his vessel. The circumstances of the case were stated in our issue of Monday last.

Mr. Marriott, who appeared for the defendant, now contended that the case was not one in which the Court could properly interpose by injunction, but that the action of the defendant constituted nothing more than a breach of contract, in respect to which the owner of the goods,—but not the plaintiff, who had no right of ownership in them,—had a right of action. The plaintiff was merely the agent of the consignee, and the endorsee of the bills of lading, but the endorsement (unless for valuable consideration) did not constitute any property whatever in the goods. The only circumstances under which the Court could grant an injunction in such a case would be when the goods were placed in danger of damage, waste, or alienation; and there was certainly no such danger in this case. The whole gravamen of the squabble really was that the defendant instead of entrusting the goods to the plaintiff, had chosen to employ Cooper's Landing Agency for that purpose. The reason for this was that he had a quantity of gunpowder on board, which he was obliged by the rules of the port to land before he came to an anchor, and according to the custom of the port this was a consequence of getting barges belonging to Cooper's Agency to go alongside and take off the powder before anchoring was that he should employ the same firm to land the whole of his cargo.

Mr. Scoble said his client claimed damages for a detention of goods, to the possession of which he was entitled. As to Mr. Marriott's argument about the plaintiff not being entitled to sue, he contended that the endorsement of a bill of lading (whether for consideration or not) was entitled to sue for the possession of the goods mentioned in his bill of lading. But he was prepared to contend that the endorsement of the bills of lading in this case was for valuable consideration.

His Lordship—It seems to me that an endorsement of a bill of lading appointing a person to receive delivery of and land the goods mentioned in it must necessarily be for valuable consideration. The man would not be likely to do the work without a prospect of remuneration and that is certainly a valuable consideration.

Mr. Scoble also contended that the course taken by the defendant constituted an alienation of the goods. He submitted that there was a clear ground shown for the interference of the Court in the way in which it had been asked, and he applied to his Lordship to make the injunction absolute, and to grant an order for costs.

Mr. Marriott said his client was willing to deliver the whole of the goods mentioned in the plaintiff's bills of lading within 48 hours at the Sassoon Dock without prejudice to the questions at issue in the suit, or to the interim injunction, except as to the goods delivered according to the undertaking.

This proposition was agreed to, and his Lordship entered an order accordingly.

Mr. Scoble asked that an early date might be fixed for the hearing of the suit, and next Thursday week was appointed.

THE FORT PROPRIETARY SCHOOL.

AT the annual exhibition of this institution, on Saturday last Mr. Dosabhoy Framjee delivered the following address:—He said that it had afforded him, as doubtless it must have afforded all the gentlemen present, great gratification to have witnessed the proceedings of that afternoon. The Proprietary School owed its origin to the earnest exertions and indefatigable zeal of the late Hon'ble Jagonath Sunkersett and the late Mr. Bomanjee Hormusjee Wadia, in the cause of education. They had long since passed away from amongst us, and it was somewhat refreshing to hear at this distance of time the names of those worthies whose lives had been an example to others and whose equals the present generation had not produced. They were among others the pioneers of education in this city, and, as members of the late board of education, had the direction of the machinery of public instruction in this Presidency. Finding that the Elphinstone Institution was attended almost exclusively by the sons of the middle and lower classes of the people, and that owing to some prejudice or other the sons of the opulent classes were educationally neglected, they bethought themselves of founding the Proprietary School where their educational wants might be fittingly and adequately provided for. Two of their colleagues in the good work of founding this school were, he was happy to say, surviving, and were present in the hall that afternoon. He referred to Sheth Framjee Nusserwanjee Patell and Sheth Pestonjee Hormusjee Camajee. To them it must have been a source of unbounded satisfaction that the tree which they had so nobly planted and carefully nourished had grown and borne such fruits as the report had that day shown. The successful pupils of the school must have felt considerable and peculiar pleasure and pride in receiving their prizes through the hands of Sheth Framjee. Coming to the statistical part of the report, he said that he was very glad to find that the school had been numerically prospering since the present Head Master took charge of it, and that the number had increased from 60 to nearly 300, which he considered very respectable, being more than half of that in the Elphinstone High School in its former days. The school had besides been sending up to the University every year a goodly number of boys, and had this year succeeded in matriculating not less than 20 pupils. This fact greatly redounded to the credit of the able Head Master and the subordinate staff of teachers and showed that the school worked well and efficiently, and that the character of instructions imparted in it was sound. Adverting to the remark made by the Head Master in the report about the study of the classical languages in the school, Mr. Dosabhoy observed that he concurred in the views of the Head Master to a certain extent, but that school masters must know that the matter scarcely lay within their power, and that they ought to shape their course by what the Arts Colleges decided. He, however, could not refrain from observing that the study of the vernaculars was not to be despised; they ought not to neglect their own vernacular under any circumstances. Studying the vernaculars in the Elphinstone College who did not possess a tolerable knowledge of Latin, Persian, or Sanscrit. Three days ago Mr. Dosabhoy had heard of the abolition of the vernacular languages from the chief Government school, the Elphinstone High School, and that the study of one of the three languages, namely, Latin, Persian, or Sanscrit, was made compulsory. Mr. Dosabhoy then remarked that the Honourable the Vice-Chancellor (Mr. Gibbs) was fully acquainted with the educational wants and requirements of the people. The Syndicate also comprised amongst its body many able and learned men, and he (Mr. Dosabhoy) had not the slightest doubt that when the question of the abolition of the vernaculars came to be considered it would be carefully weighed before any decision was arrived at. In connection with this subject he (Mr. Dosabhoy) could not help saying that in the lamented death of the late respected Dr. Wilson, whose loss they would always have to mourn, the vernaculars had lost a warm and enthusiastic advocate. His opinions were well known and were not likely to be discarded. Turning to the students, he (Mr. Dosabhoy) said he was glad to find that in training them the school was fulfilling the object for which it was founded; that it had among its past scholars Mr. Jehangeer Jeewanjee Readymoney, a nephew and heir of Sir Cowasjee Jehangeer, the munificient donor of the Elphinstone College buildings and the University Hall. This fact amply bore testimony to the value attached to this institution by the wealthier portion of our community. He would congratulate Mr. Jamshedjee Nusserwanjee Petit, one of the successful men last year, on carrying off a prize for proficiency in Guzerattee grammar and literature, especially as it was well known that Guzeratee was very foolishly disregarded by many young men of the richer portion of the Parsee community. The Chairman then exhorted them earnestly to take to heart one fact—that the character and spirit of the age impressed upon them. It was the necessity of educating themselves. Those times were gone when rich people could dispense with education, and keep up their position by its strength or their purses. The poor sought education wherewith to obtain the means of getting employment, but the rich ought to bear in mind that education had its own reward, and ought to be sought for its own sake. Mr. Dosabhoy then said that the institution was greatly indebted to that liberal hearted gentleman, Mr. Cowasjee Dinshaw, for establishing a library on its premises at a cost of Rs. 7,000 for the benefit, among others, of the students of the school, and concluded his speech by congratulating the Head Master and his able assistant on the result of the operation of the school for the past year, and hoped they would be equally successful in the future, as they have been in the past in maintaining, if not enhancing, the brilliant reputation of the school.

THE PRINCE'S DOCK.

MR. GLOVER, of Messrs. Glover and Co., contractors, in whose hands the construction of the new Dock on the Elphinstone Estate was placed by the Port Trustees, at once set energetically to work, and has already attained considerable progress, having overcome the preliminary difficulties, and set everything in fair working train. Of course, the first thing to be done was to shut out the sea, and this was found to be a much more difficult matter than was anticipated,

THE LAHORE BALL.

("Pioneer's" Correspondent)

WITH all deference to the gourmets in Punch, it is extremely difficult to remember the flavour of any particular meddle of mutton eaten the year before last; and it is not easy to keep in mind all the features of an antepenultimate ball, so as to make judicious comparison of it with its successors. Past dances come to resemble each other in the memory as indistinguishably as Gyas from Cloanthus. I at any rate cannot satisfy myself whether the Lahore Ball deserves to rank first, second, or fifth among the splendid fêtes which the Prince has honoured with his presence during his Indian progress. I am told that His Royal Highness pronounced it the best. If so, there is no appeal from the decision. But perhaps he said the pleasantest, which is not quite the same thing—such a number of things go to the enjoyment of a ball. I asked a lady who had been at the beautiful fete given by the army of Delhi in the Dewan-i-Khas, what she thought of this Lahore one in comparison? She replied: "Oh! a horrid ball! The seam of my boot burst all down the instep in the first dance. Now, this was not, strictly speaking, a defect in the ball, yet it might, and apparently did, prevent it being pleasant to one of the very best dancers in India. So, on the other hand, perhaps, the Prince's boot did not burst or pinch him, and he may have had—indeed I incline to think he had—unusually charming partners to make him find this ball so especially agreeable. Or it may have been that he was not mobbed and stared at as has sometimes been the case, or lastly, it may have been that the glee and exhilaration of his tumble at Government House had not yet faded from him. I don't know whether any account of his tumble has yet appeared in print, but it deserves record in any comic history of India. The Prince had, after dinner at Lady Davies's trusted the chairs of England to a camp or folding chair, when the noiseless furniture collapsed abruptly under him, in that manner of camp chairs with which we are all so sorely familiar. Oh! what a fall was there. It had been so instantaneous, so unexpected, that there was no palliating the shock; it came absolute, unbroken. Sir Henry Davies grew pale and speechless, and gazed over the table at the place where the royal guest had been; and still he raised the cloth and peeped under the table that he discovered his Prince unable to move, and positively helpless with laughter. I believe His Royal Highness at intervals shares over the catastrophe still. Some say that Dr. Thornton seized the occasion to deliver a short appropriate discourse on the mutability of fortune and the instability of thrones. but I was not present at the party, and am unable to assert he did. I merely allude to this event on the fancy that it may have been the good humour it excited which predisposed the Prince to be so exceptionally gratified with the ball which followed almost immediately. But the Lahore Ball had inseparable excellencies of its own which dispense from the necessity of imputing previous partiality even to those who praise it pre-eminently. In the first place, there was the supper (it ought to be printed in capitals—large ones, Printer, if you please—SUPPER), which the fresh and hungry remembrance of Delhi fully idealized. Pulse and herbs with a cold, clear draught from the brook constitute, as is well known, my favourite and habitual sustenance; but on this occasion I was shamed into exception. The supper laid out on ten or twelve tables (each to accommodate twenty-five persons) had been prepared by the servants, and under the supervision of as many ladies. These had bestowed as much care and refinement on the toilette of their respective tables as on their own. The dishes looked as exquisite as they tasted, and were further spectised by abundance of choice flowers. A tasteful economiser under such circumstances would have been rusticity, and gluttony became only a sacrifice to taste and fine art. Another merit of the Lahore Ball—the crowd was not too great for dancing—it would take a large assembly indeed to overcrowd the Montgomery Hall. But then, on the other hand, it must be stated that the floor was abominable. On the whole, as between Lahore and Delhi only, I would discriminate thus. Before supper many would give the superiority to Delhi, but at and after that ceremony, all, without hesitation or a dissentient, must have awarded it to Lahore.

MUCH ADO ABOUT A DOG.

To the Editor of the "Pall Mall Budget."

SIR,—It is not a "Belgravian Mother" nor an "Overtaxed Paterfamilias," nor a "Thirsty Soul," nor even a "Frequent Traveller by the Metropolitan Railway" that addresses you now; it is simply a fond, a foolish person, with a sentimental grievance about a dog. But so many people have a fondness for that animal that I venture to hope the troubles and humiliations I am about to relate may interest some of your readers.

To begin with, I must tell you that I have ever since childhood's earliest hour longed for the companionship of a beautiful dog; not a sporting dog nor one with frilled rate, nor one who fought with his kind and delighted to bark and bite, but a gentle and affectionate creature, who, in addition to moral and physical beauty, should possess a colossal frame and a giant's strength, and be of the famed St. Bernard breed. Without such an one I felt the cup of my earthly happiness was incomplete, and such an one I have recently met with in the person of one "Thor," a famous champion of the rough-coated St. Bernard class, who has for the last year or two inhabited the same suburb as myself. But Thor was not to be had for love or such money as I could spare; and as I could not have him I thought that no one might do; for he has very many sons has Thor and many daughters too, though not all of equal beauty. So I possessed my soul in patience, and looked at many pups, waiting till the pup who was to be my fate should make his entry into this deceiful world. That pup did so on the 12th of last February, and was presented to me six weeks after, along with his brothers and sisters. He was "the pick of the litter." His paws seemed to belong to some other and grander geological period than ours, so huge were they. The innocence of his lovely black face, apex to a pyramid of tawny wool touched me in a way I had never been touched before. His pedigree was such as many an English duke might be proud of for himself; and exclaiming, "This of all puppies is the pup for me," I purchased him for—never mind the sum, but it was considerable.

Sir, I am a father, but I never had even the most distant idea of what it is to be a mother until this animal became my property. I am glad also to add that I had never known conjugal dissension until Cockolorum (for so will I call him, for the sake of brevity) entered my family. He had little ways of his own during the early period of his cohabitation with us that were not appropriate to the domestic hearth. His unregulated appetite would satisfy itself between his meals on golosh, straw hats, sealskin muffs, and that led to heartburnings. These details may seem to you trivial; but have you ever owned an animated ball of orange-coloured fluff, weighing between fifty and sixty pounds, full of humorous mischief, and yet more transparently simple and unconscious than any child? Well, Sir, he waxed in might and beauty day by day. Whene'er he took his walks abroad he was mobbed by high and low; beautiful ladies would stop and caress him; navvies and dustmen softened visibly at sight of him; and I like, as most people do, to have my preference justified by the opinion of the world. We took Cockolorum to France during the autumn holiday; English visits to Dieppe this year may recollect the sensation he made there. On our return home I nursed him through the distemper (he had it, as it were, by instalments), and this endeared us all the more to each other. Bear with me. We all have our hobbies. One will give a hundred pounds for a china teapot, another five hundred for a fiddle he can't play; fiddles and teapots do not improve by keeping at the rate of, say eight pounds a-dripdrop weekly, and they do not go forth and multiply; fiddles and teapots, moreover, do not love one back as Cockolorum loves me.

In an evil hour friends persuaded me to exhibit him. Friends often do that kind of thing; how many travels, tragedies, poems, and what not see the light of day because the author's friends overcame his almost invincible dislike to publicity, and induced him to bring before the world what had originally been intended for the home circle and the select few! Cockolorum had originally been intended for private circulation only; but I yielded, and entered him duly for the great dog show at the Dagmar Palace. The day came for me to take and leave him there. How we scrubbed and washed, and dried and brushed him! How we combed and curled his stately head! How sportive and innocent of coming separation he was as we wended our way; and how painful that separation, when we left him for the night! He who had never been chained up, but had lived free as air, wandering at his own sweet will from dining-room to pantry, from schoolroom to kitchen, he to be cabined, cribbed among hireling, strangers who treat a dog like a dog! I rose betimes next day and betook myself to the Palace in an anxious frame of mind, and with six pound of delicious bullocks' liver boiled in rice and oatmeal. Cockolorum had not been unchained, and he did not seem to have had a good time. His coat was rough and "staring" and he panted painfully but his joy at my appearing made some amends, I hope—and so did the bullocks liver. He was surrounded by pups of his own breed—a Triton among minnows, as I thought; and, with the exception of one huge giant of the name of Russ, he was bigger, puppy though he be, than any adult St. Bernard in the whole place.

When the time came for the puppy class to show up, he walked proudly with me into the arena; and I felt really grieved for the other owners of pups, so insignificant and small did they (the pups) appear by the side of Cockolorum. But my complacency did not last long. The first and second prize were awarded, as it seemed to me, before Cockolorum and I could catch the judicial eye. Then several pups were rapidly "commended;" and the judges, after looking at my dog for a second or two, whispered ominously to each other, and told me I might take him away!

That was a bad quarter of an hour for me. I sat with Cockolorum at his stall, bitterly musing on the vanity of human wishes. "Am I blind?" thought I; "am I mad? am I a greater fool than I look, or do I look a bigger fool than I am?" From such self questionings and cogitations as these I was roused by Cockolorum's fond caresses and by the warm comments on his beauty made by a group of people assembled to admire him, for throughout the day his stall was as crowded as one of Miss Thompson's pictures at the Academy. I believe in him as much as ever, in spite of all. I also believe in the judges—that they were upright—and I acquiesced meekly in their decision; for I argued that the lordly beast, so perfect to the esthetic eye, so magnificent to that of the undiscriminating public, might to the shrewd professional orb of the "fancy" lack some subtle characteristic invisible to the vulgar gaze, but indispensable nevertheless. Indeed, some owners of prize-winning [illegible], generous under their laurels, pointed out to me splendid as he was, he had a black muzzle, and his year muzzles were worn white by the dogs of ard. And it certainly dawned on me as I nd that Cockolorum's black muzzle prevented oking quite so smart as some of the others. lf, in a black waistcoat buttoned up to appear to a disadvantage in a modern here a wide expanse of shirtfront is yet he would be Theseus, for thought gave me comfort. They to me gently that he had on each of his hind-legs; and that ever their demerits in point of size iably had, two, or even three. I then that I had not cut off Cockolorum's, as I had often wished to do, thinking them useless and unsightly appendages.

As the day wore on comfort came in a more tangible form. Dogsy-looking men in rough coats became deeply interested in Cockolorum, and one after another expressed his opinion to the effect that he was the finest pup out, let the other be where he may. Knowing gentlemen, who made notes on their catalogues with a lead pencil and were evidently reporters for the sporting press, asked many questions as to the manner he had been fed and brought up; some would measure round the chest and arm, and he bad repeatedly to be unchained and walked up and down for their benefit, after which they would make a few notes in silence, bow politely, and walk away. Later on a gentleman, after examining him with much interest, told me that had he been a judge he would have awarded him the first prize without a second's hesitation, and prophesied that Cockolorum would make a great name for himself in the world, adding that "in all his experience he never saw so grand a whelp for his age;" and I was not a little flattered to find out that this gentleman was no other than the Rev. ——, the most famous breeder of St. Bernard dogs in the world. But what perhaps rehabilitated us most in our own eyes was the discovery, soon made, that Puppy First Prize just opposite, and an uncommended puppy round the corner, had both been exhibited the week before at ——; that uncommended puppy round the corner had there taken the first prize, and Puppy First Prize just opp site had been nowhere—and (oh, joy! oh, revenge!) the puppies had changed owners, but the judges had been the same! Still the wretched fact remained—Cockolorum had not been stamped with the hall-mark of official recognition. How was I to face that laughter-loving suburban world to whom I had bragged of my puppy for I own I had not been reticent on the subject? Some men talk of their wives, some of their children, and what not—I had talked of Cockolorum. How those best friends would be avenged for the boredom I had inflicted! And the Family, too, how to face that? I telegraphed to prepare them for the disgrace, and resolved I would take my dog home that very night, to be exhibited again. Well, and so I did. And, oh! what indignation was there! what uncompromising, wholesale, sweeping condemnation of the unjust judges and their like! Poor cook, who had fed Cockolorum for eight months on savoury viands cooked fresh each day, had lost 11*s.*, having bet that he should take the first prize. (Let me here record how deeply indebted we are to that excellent woman for the almost maternal care she has bestowed on Cockolorum's diet and all his little comforts.) Thus ended this to-Cockolorum-and-myself-so-eventful day, as the Germans would express it. And so to bed, and to dream that he had worried the leaner of the two judges into a fit and eaten up the fat one, but was acquitted by jury of his countrymen on the score of extreme provocation.

Now, Sir, can you enter into my feelings when on the following day I found in The Country, December 16, 1875, p. 549, the following?—"But the most extraordinary pup for bone, substance, and symmetry in the class was Mr. Sticklelback's (that's me) Cockolorum. He has a grand head, but rather long muzzle, a noble bearing, and countenance expressive of kindness and intelligence, of most massive frame, well ribbed up, good quarters, and stands straight on his pins; his legbones is immense, and he bids fair to become one of the grandest dogs of the day. His appearance would no doubt be enhanced if he had a proportion of white to relieve his too sombre colour, but we consider the want of this no justification of the judges in passing over such a grand puppy unnoticed." . . . And can you conceive my delight when I read two days after in The Field the still more flattering notice that— But no, I have no right to trespass on your space with more extracts from the sporting papers that all are vieing with each other in commendation of one I think I may now safely call "the Pup of the Day."

Sir, will you forgive me for troubling you with this long letter about a dog, and for begging from you the publicity which alone will remove the libellous stigma attached to Cockolorum and his possible posterity for generations, through his having been passed over at the Dagmar Palace? He will never be exhibited again; but if through your favour and that of your sporting contemporaries he may be said to have left that canine court of would-be justice "without a stain upon his character," he will return to the simple duties and pleasures of his unambitious suburban career with a thankful heart, nor tempt again the glare of public life, its petty jealousies, its garrish and uncertain triumphs, and its bitter deceptions.—I am, &c.

December 23. THE LORD OF COCKOLORUM.
